Breast Cancer Awareness Month

OCTOBER 2021

Breast cancer affects hundreds of thousands of families each year. A potentially deadly disease, breast cancer is associated with several risk factors. Some of those risk factors, including gender and age, are beyond an individual's control, while other risk factors are associated with certain lifestyle choices. But even if a woman has the risk factors for breast cancer, that does not mean she will get the disease. In fact, a woman can have several of the following risk factors and never get breast cancer, while other women can have just one of the risk factors and still get a breast cancer diagnosis.

Risk factors beyond your control

• Gender: Women are far more likely to develop breast cancer than men. The American Cancer says breast cancer is roughly 100 times more common among women than men. That's likely because men produce far less estrogen and progesterone, female hormones that can promote the growth of breast cancer cells.

• Age: An individual's risk for breast cancer increases as he or she ages. Roughly two-thirds of all invasive breast cancer cases are found in women over the age of 55, while just 13 percent of such cases are found in women younger than 45.

• Genetics: The ACS notes that roughly 5 to 10 percent of all breast cancer cases are believed to be hereditary. These cases result from mutations, or defects in a gene, inherited from a parent. In many cases a person will inherit a mutation in the BRCA1 and BRCA2 genes, which will normally prevent cancer by making proteins that keep the cells from growing abnormally. However, when these genes mutate, the risk for developing breast cancer is significant, as high as 80 percent for someone who has inherited mutated BRCA genes.

• Family history: Women with a blood relative who has had breast cancer are also at greater risk of developing the disease. If a first-degree relative, which includes a mother, sister or daughter, has had breast cancer, a woman's risk roughly doubles. Having two such relatives who have had breast cancer triples a woman's risk.

• Race and ethnicity: White women are slightly more likely to develop breast cancer than African-American women. However, African-American women are more likely to die from the disease. Asian, Hispanic and Native American women have a lower risk of developing and dying from breast cancer.

• Dense breast tissue: Women with dense breast tissue, which is noticeable on a mammogram, have a higher risk of breast cancer. But dense breast tissue can make it harder for physicians to detect potential problems on a mammogram.

• Menstrual cycles: Women who began menstruating prior to age 12 and/or went through menopause after age 55 have a slightly higher risk of breast cancer. Researchers believe this is because these women had a longer lifetime exposure to estrogen and progesterone.

Risk factors you can control

• Having children: Women who have never given birth or who gave birth for the first time after the age of 30 have a higher risk of developing breast cancer. Pregnancy reduces the total number of menstrual cycles a woman will have over her lifetime, which some feel is the reason that becoming pregnant can reduce a woman's risk.

• Oral contraceptive use: Women who have used oral contraceptives, often referred to as birth control pills, have a higher risk of breast cancer than women who have never used them. But that risk returns to normal when a woman stops taking birth control.

• Breastfeeding: Some research has linked breastfeeding with a slightly lower risk of developing breast cancer, especially among women who breastfeed for 11⁄2 to 2 years. However, breastfeeding for such a lengthy period is relatively uncommon, which has made the potential link between breastfeeding and a lower risk of breast cancer difficult to determine.

• Alcohol consumption: The ACS notes there is a clear connection between alcohol consumption and breast cancer risk. The more alcohol a woman consumes, the greater her risk for developing breast cancer. Women who consume two to five alcoholic beverages daily have roughly 11⁄2 times the risk of breast cancer as women who do not consume alcohol.

• Overweight and obesity: Women, especially those who are post-menopausal, who are overweight or obese have a greater risk of developing breast cancer. After menopause, most of a woman's estrogen comes from fat tissue, and a woman with more fat tissue will likely have higher estrogen levels, increasing her risk of breast cancer. Blood insulin levels also tend to be higher in overweight or obese individuals, and elevated blood insulin levels have been linked to some cancers, including breast cancer.

• Physical activity: More and more evidence is piling up to suggest that exercise can reduce breast cancer risk. Studies vary as to how much exercise is necessary to reduce the risk, but the benefits of exercise are so numerous as to encourage women to be more physically active regardless of how much they may reduce their risk of developing breast cancer.

Allen Magnuson

Allen Earl Magnuson, 71, of Fergus Falls, passed away at his home of a suspected cardiac event on Saturday, September 25, 2021.

Al was born November 20, 1949, to Allen and Violet (Hanson) Magnuson in Fargo, ND. He graduated from Wheaton High School in 1967. Al attended Gustavus Adolphus College, earning a degree in Biology in 1971 and continued his education at the University of Minnesota Medical School graduating in 1975. He passionately served the children of Fergus Falls and surrounding communities as a beloved Pediatrician at the Fergus Falls Medical Group from 1978 until his retirement in 2018. The children and families he cared for were important to him and he enjoyed following their accomplishments as they grew up.

On June 20, 1971, he married Sandra Dickmeyer at Green Lake Bible Camp in Spicer, MN.

He was a member of Men of Note, First Lutheran Senior Choir, Augustana Choir, and church music and worship committees. Serving the community of Fergus Falls was important to Al and he volunteered his time in numerous activities and groups.

Al enjoyed time spent with family and watching his grandkids sporting events. He loved to share his garden produce and baked goods with family and friends. Fishing was an important part of his life that he shared with many friends and family. With any remaining free time, he enjoyed horseback riding and cross-country skiing.

Preceding him in death were his father, Allen Einer Magnuson; mother, Violet (Hanson) Magnuson; father-in-law, Bud Dickmeyer, and mother-in-law, Elayne Dickmeyer.

Al is survived by his wife, Sandra Magnuson of Fergus Falls; children, Lane (Lisa) Magnuson of Buxton, ND and Candy (Travis) Barton of Bozeman, MT; grandchildren, Abby and Alec Magnuson, Brenna Barton, and Annie Gillette, and aunts, uncles, cousins, and many friends.

Memorials are preferred to Young Life Otter Tail County or to Lake Region Cancer Care and Research Center.

Visitation: 5-7 p.m., Thursday, September 30, 2021 at Augustana Lutheran Church in Fergus Falls, MN. Visitation will resume one hour prior to the service at the church.

Memorial Service: 1:30 p.m. Friday, October 1, 2021 at Augustana Lutheran Church in Fergus Falls.

Clergy: Pastoral Intern Amy Kelly and Reverend Gretchen Enoch

Fall Gardening

FALL BLOOMERS

By Bev Johnson,
Otter Tail County Master Gardener

The stores are full of "garden mums" this time of year. They are great to fill in the empty spots in the flower garden or to add a pop of color to your deck. The problem with them is, they usually don't winter here in the frozen north. There are usually several plants in a pot so if you find one you really want to keep, take one plant out and pot it up. Leave it out, pot buried, till the temps are in the low 40s, then bring it in. cut off any flowers and put it in a sunny window for the winter. The leaves may fall off, but it should re-leaf. Put it out next spring when you plant your annuals and you will get at least one more year out of it. Hardy mums will usually have Minn in their name. There are a few large flowered types that the U has developed that are hardy and should bloom before a hard frost. Look for Grape Glow, Centerpiece, Lemonsota and Rose Blush.

There are other potted bloomers that you may be able to find now. Hardy asters bloom in pink, cerise, lavender, purple and blue. They are quite tall. Boltonia, a native, looks like an aster, comes in many of the same colors and white. There are several cultivars of our native goldenrod. No matter what your old aunties told you, they do not cause or aggravate hay fever. The pollen of golden rod is heavy and just falls to the ground. It's the rag weed pollen that floats around and gets you. Golden rod is used a lot in European gardens. Their aunties apparently haven't heard that old wife's tale.

How about trying Kamchatka bug bane? Sounds like a disease or a town in Alaska. It has an attractive fernlike foliage all summer and white "bottle brush" flowers 3 to 4 feet tall in the fall.

There are several stonecrops that bloom now. Most gardeners have seen or at least, heard of Autumn Joy. If you want a more vivid pink, look for Meteor or Brilliant. Back them up with the lacy lavender spikes of Russian Sage and you have a real showstopper.

Local nurseries have pots of perennials for sale now. They would rather not have to overwinter them, so they are usually "well priced" (cheap). Planting now will ensure they will come back next spring. We still have at least 6 weeks before hard frost.

Now that the weather has cooled down, you should be thinning your iris and peonies. Actually, peonies don't really like to be moved and will happily bloom in the same place for many years. Only move them if they are in a poor spot or full of weeds. Iris, however, get so crowded the middles don't flower. Dig the whole clump up. Discard any rhizome that doesn't have a healthy fan of leaves on it. You don't need to cut them, just break them off. Discard any diseased rhizome. Those hunks that look like dog poop are just anchors and won't bloom. Chuck them too. To re-plant, make a mound of soil. Arrange the rhizomes around it, toes pointing out. They should be good for at least 5 more years before you need to do it all over again. They may pout for a summer but the second year they will be beautiful.

No weather is certain in Minnesota. We could have 50 below and no snow, killing everything including your car.
